

THE WEEKEND AUSTRALIAN

Letters

June 21 -22, 2008

Pankaj Oswal has not done Australia a big favour as he believes ["Meet the Oswals", June 7 - 8], given his ammonia plant is within one kilometre from the rock art of Murujuga [the Burrup Peninsula]. Already 10,000 pieces of ancient rock art have been destroyed or removed by industry since the '60s. Oswal talks of karma, but does he understand the devastating effect of his actions on the Aboriginal people?
